West Street Potters show off their skills at Maltings

WEST Street Potters Exhibition at Farnham Maltings Gallery was opened by town mayor Vic Scrivens at the private view on Monday evening. The exhibition continues every day until Saturday, October 30.

Some 230 pots are on display, showing the wide-ranging interests and considerable abilities of the members.

Their enthusiasm is distilled and presented in a most attractive setting in the east wing of the Maltings.

The exhibition's appeal owes much to the professional expertise of Katerina Evangelidou, one of the WSP tutors, who was the inspiration behind its design and staging.

Most of the pottery is for sale, the choice covering rugged abstract forms with warm iron glazes, relaxed flowing shapes that speak of the plasticity of clay and the interaction between flame and glaze, and a host of other explorations of traditional and newly-evolving techniques.
